Lifeguards to use new Scanning Technique

The 5-Minute Scanning Strategy was developed by Dr. Tom Griffiths, of Penn State University. The strategy was developed to help lifeguards stay alert while performing the task of watching the people in the pool. Several national lifeguarding groups have adopted the use of the 5-Minute Scanning Technique. Columbus Pool Management has been encouraging guards to use the technique. Beginning this year, the use of the technique will be required. As a result, you will sometimes see the lifeguard sitting on the chair, sometimes standing on the deck, and sometimes strolling along the edge of the pool. Regardless, the lifeguard is on duty and prepared to make a rescue. The 5-Minute Scanning Strategy is one of several means a lifeguard attempts to prevent accidents. Your summer pool staff will now include these skills as part of their preventive lifeguarding routine.
